PEARL HARBOR ?!!

Josephus Daniels Was Right About Booze

Drunken Men Are Not on the Alert

SOLONS DISCUSS PACIFIC BLAME

WASHINGTON,— Chairman Walsh (D-Mass) of the senate naval committee said that the navy department never had asked congress directly to fortify the Pacific island of Guam.

As the senate discussed responsibilty for the lack of alertness at Pearl Harbor, Walsh added that the two-ocean fleet program "began in congress and ended in congress" and was undertaken at a time when admirals deemed it unnecessary.

Sen. Tydings (D-Md) contended that fortification of Guam would have "seriously interfered with Japanese strategy for a surprise attack on Pearl Harbor". However, Sen. Clark (D-Mo) held that "no amount of fortification of Guam would have substituted for that essential lack of being on the alert" on the part of the army and navy.

"If they had been on the alert," Clark continued, "the defense at Pearl Harbor would have been entirely adequate.

NAVY CONSUMES TOO MUCH BOOZE ON LIBERTY

The thing which none of the boards of inquiry dare tell, or even thoroughly investigate, is how drunk were the men on December 6, 1941, the night before the Japs descended on Pearl Harbor. And not only enlisted men but officers as well. Senators will debate and repeat again and again "the essential lack of being on the alert" was the cause of the Pearl Harbor disaster but why don't they name the thing by name and come out in the open and say the men were drunk as usual on Saturday nights. There lies a good deal of the blame.

All you have to do is go out evenings into the toilets of hotels and service stations patronized by navy personnel in uniform, any night when the men are on liberty and you will find them bunched, three, four and five, in a men's toilet and guzzling their cheap booze. You don't have to go to Pearl Harbor to discover what booze did to the navy. And in the oriental surroundings men imagine that drinking is even more important than on the continent. With the wily Japs tavern keepers and bartenders helping along with free drinks on that memorable Saturday night the fleet simply was too darn drunk to be on the alert. Of course a large percentage of the men were sober, but enough had their hangover on to make them unfit for effective combat.

Anyone familiar with Coronado and with apartment houses in San Diego knows how navy couple throw booze parties and make an unholy specacle of themselves occasionally. Such booze in the brain when the enemy is overhead is just enough, like in drunk driving, to spell disaster.

What the navy needs is another Josephus Daniels, another Daniels brave enough to ban booze from the battlewagons and forbid it to any man in the service whether on board or on liberty. Booze and gasoline don't mix except to spell disaster. Booze and defense mix even less except to shout it as loudly as can be: REMEMBER PEARL HARBOR !

Printer's Note— My dear Leon, although as I understand there is supposed to be some sort of rule or regulation banning uniformed men from booze dives after a certain hour in the evening (and if I had my way about these said dives, no man in uniform would enter them at any time for there just wouldn't be any dive for them to go into) you don't have to wade around in lavatories to get your evidence of service men drinking, you can find them in most any of these honky-tonk-cafe-booze-joints most any time. I consider anyone who sells liquor to a uniformed man a traitor to our country, just as I also consider anyone who profiteers by manipulation (through his political connections, or otherwise) a traitor to the U. S. A.

It is without question a very grave mistake to give our uniformed men, who right now like at the time of the World War I, are mostly young men, any encouragement to take a drink or to even smoke. It not only befogs their brain when it should be the clearest but is habit-forming, as was the case with thousands of W. W. I veterans, who are now paying the price if they weren't killed in action.

WE EXPECT THE WAR TO CONTINUE for five years,—perhaps longer—so more food will be required for this reason; it is important for Southern California to plant as many acres as possible.

IN CORONADO— I estimate five thousand (5000) and in the San Diego section: forty thousand (40,000) acres can be ploughed. Potatoes, onions, beans and peas are most needed.

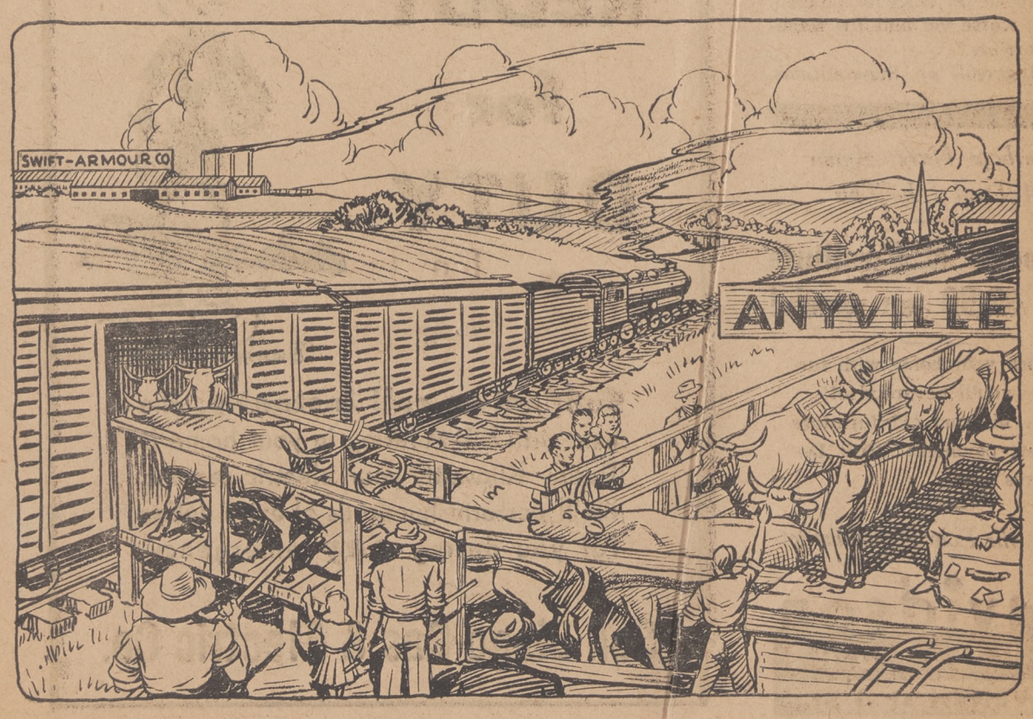
On Their Way



Ignorance vs Stupidity

(Friday night 9:45, K G B, Jan 30, 1942)

Did you ever realize the vast difference between ignorance and stupidity? This is quite an important matter, that's why I am taking it up for discussion tonight. The difference between ignorance and stupidity is so deep that it will startle you once you begin to realize it. An ignorant person is one who does not know because he never had given the subject matter proper attention; a stupid person is one who lacks the ability to know.

Now the circumstances which produce ignorance and stupidity are varied. A child is ignorant. But being curious and willing to learn and do things, the child soon learns to distinguish and acquire the proper perspective. The stupid person never learns. It is stupidity that finally leads to wars where people refuse to use reason to straighten out their differences. That's why the subject is of tremendous importance to all of us.

Every child is born with trillions of braincells in its gray matter. For every possible idea God has provided a tiny little cell. A trillion is a million millions. You know, at first the child believes that all he has to do to grasp the moon is stretch forth his little hand. Soon he learns the perspective of distance, the proportion and relation of things to each other. This proper perspective is the great factor which either produces harmony or discord. This perspective applies to time as well as to space. Some people never seem to realize the proportions of time location. They are always behind time in keeping their appointment to be at a certain place at a fixed time. Some never seem to guage how much time it would take them to do a certain task. And why is that? Organically speaking, they did not cultivate the right brain cells that deal with time and space, we say they don't think right about it.

This ability to THINK and guage and analyze and deduct and come to a correct conclusion and decision is what makes the difference between an intelligent person and a moron. People who cannot be trusted to make proper decisions and take care of their own affairs to advantage are always immature in mind, regardless of their physical age.

Children can be trained to exercise their respective brain cells and in that fashion they learn and develop their intelligence. But when important questions of PRINCIPLE come up, where it takes courage, moral courage and honesty, intellectual honesty, to make the right decision according to PRINCIPLE, then more than the mere mind is involved. The whole human being is involved. The emotions as well as the spiritual faculties. When one has to choose between making what is called easy money and keeping faith with those who trust him, and decides to betray the faith and take advantage of circumstances to rob the gullible or the unwary and trusting, then such a decision is stupid. Crooks call it smart, but the truth of it is that such a person has started down the path of stupidity. By making such a decision the individual breaks up the proper functions of those brain cells which stand for honesty and faith. He actually and factually destroys and kills those brain cells as you would tear down a house, brick by brick. He deliberately kills and destroys in himself the means by which the sense of honesty and of faith functions in men. Religion says he is selling his soul to Satan for so much plunder; and plunder it is.

Such a person thereafter does not think normally and considers cheating as something to be proud of. They go from bad to worse and and are dangerous to themselves and society. If they get into places of power they don't shrink from even committing murder. Only stupid people do such things, it brings them nothing good in return. Murder on a wholesale scale is war. If you want to find the cause of war it lies in stupidity.

I hope you realize the difference between being merely ignorant and being stupid. You can teach an ignorant person but never a stupid one, they never learn.

That Crazy de Aryan !

Five prisoners were killed in the city jail and 10 others injured in a fire last Wednesday morning because the cells were locked and the jailers were prevented by smoke and fire from opening the individual cells in time to save them. Almost two years ago I predicted this very thing in an article in my paper. I warned that cells should be opened by a mechanism that works automatically, opening all the cells at once, in case of emergency, from the hallway outside the cell block. But the city authorities shrugged their shoulders and said I was crazy. I wish for once our city fathers would take turns about and be crazy enough to have some sense when I tell them the truth.

Open British Dungeons In India

NEW YORK,— While the Japanese drive their battering rams at Singapore and Burma, their secret agents, with those of the Dr. Goebbles, are pouring propaganda poison into the ears of the wild Afridi tribesmen across the Afghanistan frontier of India. The axis house-breakers are unscrewing the bolts that bar the back-door to Britain's greatest Oriental treasure house. They are stirring up the natives to creep down through the Khyber Pass and take the land of the Hindu from the rear.

Egged on by the conscience of the Labor and Liberal parties in England and worried by the lowering menace that threatens him, the viceroy at last is trying desperate stop-gap measures to bring the sullen masses over to his side. Political prisoners are released from their dungeons. For the first time in history the executive council is composed of a popular Indian majority. Representatives from the entire country are called to sit in the hitherto exclusive national defense council. Members of all parties will hold a conference at which a constitution will be framed.

But this "death-bed repentance" has not greatly impressed the local leaders. Gandhi and Jinnah, respective heads of the congress and Moslem league, hold aloof. Nehru, who succeeds the Mahatma, is not antagonistic to the Allies, but neither is he cooperative. Even Sir Hyat Khan, the Punjab premier, says he has a "feeling of despondency and dismay" because Downing street refuses to grant independence and thus give his benighted land something worth fighting for.

Draft Objector May Lose Teaching Job

SACRAMENTO,— Roland Chinn, Sacramento High school instructor in United States history and Americanization, has been suspended as the result of a statement to his draft board describing himself as a conscientious objector.

Jesse R. Overturf, city superintendent of schools, in anouncing his action, said Chinn's draft board informed him the teacher, a Quaker, had declared himself opposed to military or non-military service, and questioned his fitness for the history teaching post.

In reply, Chinn denied he was unwilling to serve his country, "provided such service is consistent with Christian principles". His case will be submitted to the city board of education next Monday for decision as to his dismissal or reinstatement.

By Their Works Ye Shall Know Them

Dear Mr. de Aryan:

In addition to my subscription I beg to call your attention to the enclosed special folder for the times, with the aims of which I trust you will be in agreement. It is the activation of our faith, through our living national and constitutional system, that Americans must look to if we are to preserve our country. "By their works ye shall know them". We must become active at the Primaries, or else. the mantle of intelligent leadership falls from our shoulders: Gutted and looted, we then are disgraced and bare, exposed to scorching suns, & to every jeering, bitter & heartless wind that blows.

Yours truly, M. W. M., Philadelphia, Pa.

Not Afraid to Tell Them

Dear Sir:— Have been listening to your radio program now for a long time. And I admire you for your courage on the radio.

I have been thinking I would like to see a copy of that newspaper, The Broom. And if it is a paper of my liking I will try and get it for 6 months or a year. I am only a poor woman and all alone. But I sure do like to listen to you on the radio, you are not afraid to tell them so! And this town as well as many places needs a cleaning up. Please send me a copy.

Very sincerely yours, Mrs. M. B., San Diego.

The Money Racket

In the first issue of a new magazine, "Uncle Sam's Dollars", Fred Blethen shows up the vicious monetary system in vogue in Canada. The Canadian system, as shown by Mr. Blethen, is a considerable of an improvement over the thievish system in force here, as Canada does draw down a considerable part of the profits of the central bank, whereas we get none of it in the United States.

He says: "An interesting example of how banks become rich and powerful from a comparatively small start, and how they can "loan" so much more money than they have is strikingly displayed by the last statement released by the Bank of Canada, which corresponds to our Federal Reserve System in this country.

"This bank has an ownership interest of $5,000,000. This was its original capital and represents the money the stockholders put into the bank, yet today it has already loaned to the various Canadian governments more than 575 million dollars, and his issued 360 million dollars worth of Bank Notes, which are the money of Canada, in the same way that Federal Reserve Notes are the money of this country."

"Of course some bankers will point to "Deposits" and tell you that the depositors furnished the money which the bank loaned, but the Bank of Canada now shows on its statement that over 240 million of its present deposits are owned by the very government to whom it loaned the money, and by the chartered Banks of the Dominion."

"When the Bank of Canada makes a loan to the Dominion Government, or buys its bonds, which amounts to the same thing, it sets up a deposit to the credit of the Dominion on the books of the bank. Thus it has made a new deposit to balance the bonds received but there was no money involved in the transaction at all.

"It was simply a matter of swapping debts. When the Dominion government checks against this deposit for the payment of the cost of government, the recipient simply re-deposits the money in some chartered bank, and it returns to the Bank of Canada as a Chartered Bank Deposit. If for any reason some one wants "cash" they will get "Bank Notes" which the Bank of Canada can have printed at a small cost, on the strength of bonds which it received in the first place without the payment of anything but deposit credit."

Mr. Blethen quite evidently knows whereof he speaks. He shows that the Bank of Canada (privately owned) does make a return to the Dominion for the privilege of manipulating money and credits, whereas our own Federal Reserve (also privately owned) manipulates to the ruin of the nation and makes no such return.

At a time when our people are being asked to sacrifice for the cause of defense (as is proper on itself) these great International Money Changers are reaping the greatest harvest of all time thru such manipulation. No Nation on earth can long survive such an utterly thievish system.

The entire blame for the condition is chargeable to Congress. Our Congress knows all about this outrageous thievery and the the majority have shown that they approve of it by permitting its continuance. Don't think for a minute that Congress does not understand the thing. Something like 80% of Congress is said to be composed of lawyers and at least some lawyers are scalawags. Possibly some of those in Congress can be so listed.

Ruling Recognizes Parental Right to Decide on Vaccination Status of Minors

A news item by a staff correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor, August 2, 1941, directs attention to an important ruling from the Attorney General's office of Missouri, written by W. O. Jackson, Asistant Attorney General, holding that it would appear that the National Youth Administration for Missouri would have no authority to take control over minors to the extent of vaccination or inoculation for the purpose of immunizing against smallpox and typhoid without the consent of the parents or other lawful guardian

Mr. Jaskson is further quoted as stating that "From the above quotation it is apparent that the right of the parents to the custody and control of their children is one that may only be superseded by the State in a proper proceeding, and then only when the welfare of the child or children necessitates the taking of control by the State.

POISON WILL OUT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—Mme. Ivy Litvinoff, British-born wife of the new Soviet Ambassador, was under a physician's care tonight at the Russian Embassy. Her secretary described her condition as "seriously ill, but not dangerously so".

An official of the Russian War Relief organization said in New York that Mme. Litvinoff was unable to attend a tea there because and a skin infection resulting from inoculations and vaccinations taken in Singapore on her way here.

Going on His Own

Dear Sir:

Since you are so reluctant about publishing my letters I have concluded to buy me a small press and publish my ideas in a pamphlet form.

People today are interested in solutions of our affairs rather than criticism of the wrongs. The one big thing the world needs more than anything else is a united world with a united system of money. Why have a lot of poor people just because of the lack of money. Take, for instance The South Americans. They have a lot of poor people while those countries have abundance of resources. Its the most ridiculous thing one can imagine. An abundance of everything and no money to buy it.

There's a man going to rise out of the throng or masses of people that will make this old banking system look like a pile of junk, and its not in the distant future.

Good bye and good luck. I must be on my mission in life.

E. C. Lesperence.

IN MEMORIAM

Mother Maria Hilton

Funeral services were held Thursday, February 5th, in Los Angeles, for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Ruth Hilton, who died early last Monday morning. Mother Maria, as she was known to the Mazdaznan Group, has been in charge of the movement since the passing of Doctor O. Z. Hanish in 1936. Among her many friends who attended the funeral from San Diego were, Tony Iverson, Phillip Hughett and C. Leon de Aryan; the Mesdames Rose Mahoney, Helen Smith, Elsie Hughett, Katherine Kaul and Genevieve de Aryan. Mrs. Elsie Hughett officiated at the simple funeral rites.

MAZDAZNAN IN ARMENIA

While poorly informed people imagine that Jesus was a Jew, the truth is HE was an Armenian, a sun-worshipper. After Jesus was crucified He retired into seclusion where He started what is known in history as the Neo-Platonic school, with its teachings of Platonic love. The main point in the whole message of Jesus to the world is emphasized in: "Therefore, love ye one another even as I love you". That is Platonic love or Christ love, whichever term conveys to you the purity of such love which we are to exercise towards one another as little children in the same Father's family.

The National Geographic Magazine of Dec. 1918, page 469 gives this interesting bit of information:

"At the birth of Christ the Armenians were Parsees, fire-worshippers, followers of Zoroaster, but soon after the Crucifixion some became Christians. The preaching of Saint Gregory the Illuminator converted their king. Tiridates, who, with his people, received baptism at the end of the third century, thus antedating by several years the conversion of Constantine. Hence the Armenians were the first nation to accept Christianity, their king was the first Christian sovereign, and the Gregorian Armenian is the eldest purely national Church . . . "

MILLION DOLLARS DAMAGE SUIT LOST

While the yellow sheets in Los Angeles and elsewhere blazoned forth with scare headlines and pervert stories about the "immorality" of the "Cult", when an irresponsible woman attempted to blackmail the alleged millions of dollars worth Mazdaznan Association, the court dismissed the case. The one who has been hurt is the young girl who permitted herself to be used as the "victim" in this extortion case.

LABOR RACKET

WASHINGTON,— It is a curious thing that nobody mentions the fact that Mr. Sidney Hllman, the labor czar opposite Mr. Nelson, is drawing a considerable sum from organized labor and that he does deal directly with himself. He is not an impartial administrator working first and solely for the interest of the government. He is a pressure advocate for the interest of organized labor.

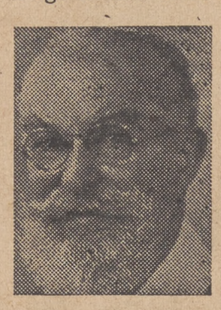
FEAR KILLS

LOS ANGELES,— Several years ago I was called in on a serious case of congestion of the lungs caused from smoking and too much eating and excitement. I told the doctors who called me in to consult with them, that there was no danger of pneumonia, if the bowels were kept cleared out and only water and lemon juice were given.



Dr. Geo. Starr White

The sick man overheard one of the doctors talking to the wife. This physician used the term "gangreen of lungs". The patient thot it referred to him but it did not. His temperature immediately began to go up. He was dead before morning —killed by FEAR!

For congestion and inflammations, don't use ice, but use heat. Heat is life and aids life. Cold means death and slows up the very circulation we must help make more active.

Any congestion, if it lingers, leads to inflammation. That makes pressure on the nerves and blood-vessels. That in turn produces a "blocking up" of the parts that are inflamed.

Don't worry about any disorder. Clean the bowels out well and keep them active. Eat only fruit juices and water until all signs of fever have disappeared.

Worry will produce a panic. That panic will confuse the workings of the mind of the worrier. A confused mind "loses its way".

When there is any danger of blood-poisoning, use garlic-water frequently. Raw garlic juice is almost a specific in cases of blood-poisoning with hy temperature.

"de Aryan Comments"

(Friday 9:45 p. m. K G B, February 6, 1942)

Peace Leaders of the Future

This week I was in Los Angeles again, calling on my various friends and subscribers and attending to some other business matters. What struck me forcibly was the fact that wherever I went the men and women who are reading my San Diego paper commented on my stand on behalf of constitutional conduct of our government and the American way of life. You, see, I was curious to know why people in Los Angeles want to read my paper and are willing to pay for it when they can get so many other papers, many much larger, than mine. Here is what they say: "Mr. de Aryan, we wish there were more men like you who have the courage of their conviction to come out and demand that the constitution be respected and lived up to by the men in Washington. There are so few men left who stick by the original American concept, everything is changing so fast; you are one of the few old timers left".

This is what attracts readers in other cities. Recently my subscription list outside of San Diego has been increasing proportionately faster than in San Diego, so I decided to get out on the road and find the reason for it. One would have hardly believed that a man like myself who is comparatively speaking a foreigner, an immigrant, naturalized here, should be regarded as an old time American, as a respresentative of the old time American way of life, of thinking and living his life. But that is what my subscribers say is the reason why they buy my weekly paper.

What did the contemporaries do to the men in history who stood out for peace and obedience to the principles of highest human conduct? Were they not stoned and crucified and burned at the stake, jailed in prisons and persecuted by Nero and other brutes in high public office?

Let us see what happened to them and continues to happen to such highly progressed and developed men and women in such a country as Hitler's Germany. When church, schools and the parental home unite in producing boys and girls who are impressed with the necessity of being truthful, honest with themselves and others, when they learn the value of intellectual honesty and the importance of religious faith; a faith strong enough to place God and the TEN COMMANDMENTS above all other considerations of whatever nature; I say, when church, school and the parental home have succeeded to imbue the children with such ideals and right self-discipline, what happens to them in Germany today?

The figures I am giving you are a very conservative estimate. In the Nazi concentration camps the Gestapo is holding imprisoned today, as if they were criminals, over 16,000 socalled conscientious objectors to Nazi militarism. They are men and young women who refuse to help Hitler make war on other countries. Among them are Seventh Day Adventists, Jehovah's Witnesses, Christian Scientists, Mazdaznans, Theosophists and many others.

Generally speaking, the popular concept is that a conscientious objector is a coward who is so afraid of the hardships and the risks of war that he becomes a slacker by registering as a conscientious objector. Only few people realize the true state of affairs. Look at the men and women in Germany. If you imagine that they have it easier in the concentration camps under the heel of the Gestapo than they would have it in the army, analyze the hard and undeniable facts. The German soldier is the best fed, best clothed man and is treated with respect everywhere in Germany. The inmate of a concentration camp is treated worse than a dog, beaten up, often tortured, treated with contempt, I am speaking of those who are locked up because of their conscientious objection to military service. There are other types of prisoners of war in concentration camps and they are treated entirely different from the conscientious objectors. The theory of the Gestapo is to make it so miserable and so dangerous for life and limb for conscientious objectors that they would rather serve in the armed forces than in a concentration camp. But those prisoners who refuse to follow Hitler because their religion teaches them that there is no LORD higher than God, and as Pastor Martin Niemoeller said: "Not you Herr Hitler, but the LORD is my fuehrer", and are sent to concentration camps for their religious beliefs, those prisoners suffer more than they would ever be subjected to as soldiers. Their lives are not safe, their treatment is worse than that accorded convicted felons in German prisons, their food the poorest in the Reich, still they refuse to serve under Hitler. Could anyone say that they are cowards? Does it not take a character of a very high Order to stand up under the tortures, insults and miserable living conditions accorded them by Himmler's Gestapo and still be loyal to their Christ and their God and their concept of individual freedom and the right to self-determination? That's the kind of men and women who chose persecution, suffering, disgrace and death rather than be untrue to the very principles which are being taught today in every civilized country in the homes, the schools and from every pulpit and church and synagogue.

When you come to think of it, would you dare undergo the ordeal which those conscientious objectors go through every day in the year since Hitler took over Germany? Are they cowards? Are they slackers? Does it not change your viewpoint when you think of them in Germany?

And now what difference does it make in which country they live? The ideal of a courageous, peace loving follower of the Christ carries the same virtue in Germany as in the U. S. A. There is not one Christian standard for those living in Germany and another for those living in this country. What conscientious objectors have to suffer in this day and age is worse than what they had to suffer when Emperor Nero threw them to the lions in the Roman circus for the delectation of the wild and bloodlusty populace. In those days their torture was of short duration. The wild animals in the circus arena were more merciful than the torturers of the Gestapo as well as of the OGPU. In modern days the tortures are more refined and drawn out. It is not just one night in the circus arena and then released by a merciful death. It is a living death of horrors for months and years, slowly drawn out. That is what it takes to be a conscientious objector.

For the first time in the history of the U. S. that conscientious objectors are not jailed like criminals, provided they register first. Those whose objections cover the act of registration are convicted of a felony and sent to federal prison, they lose their citizenship. But those who register and report to the work camps under the direction of the Quakers or Friends Service Committees; they are treated quite well and enjoy many liberties. They receive no pay though they do hard work and useful work. But this is an innovation which should be commented upon and commended. For the first time that we recognize the right of the American citizen to follow God as his leader according to his individual conscience.

That they are no longer maltreated is a good sign of encouragement that mankind is outgrowing the jungle law of brutality. Only last year that I quoted over this station an editorial report from the SATURDAY EVENING POST giving facts, names and data from official records of the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, where conscientious objectors were hung by their thumbs from prison cell doors and were given the cold water treatment, playing the nozzles of piercing needle streams on them till the victims lost consciousness. I brought such facts out also during the Radio Forum discussions over this station.

But thanks to the efforts of the Mennonites, the Quakers and others, the U. S. today leads the world in humane treatment of those who put their individual concepts of Christ and religion above all wordly considerations. This is a good sign. It means that it is no longer a crime in this country to follow Christ in peace as well as in war time. It means that we are leading the world in progress; that in time we shall produce a generation of men and women who will devote their lives to finding means and ways to live in peace with all the world and set an example of being good neighbors. This good neighbor policy is the salvation of the world. One may be a hero on the battlefield, but a dead hero or a crippled hero is of not much use in the life of the nation. We need men and women who know how to be good neighbors, whom the world trusts and is not afraid of them and needs not maintain standing armies as protection against them.

When Germany returns to normal the men and women in the concentration camps will represent the highest type of good citizenship. They had the courage of their convictions. Many of them will be eminently fitted to take part in the new government for they have suffered and were not found wanting. And so the world over, those men and women who believe in peace are the pioneers who will lead and are leading the world to peace. Having achieved such character in their own lives, having had the courage to pass the test of war, they have the insight and the stamina for producing a new administration which will lay the same emphasis on keeping the peace and making it worth while for other nations to keep the peace as today we are spending billions on lend-lease for other nations to supply them with the means on carrying on the war efforts against the Axis and Japan.

Today you will read in every prominent newspaper and magazine comments, suggestions and discussions as to the peace terms which should be agreed upon already now, that this war may be terminated in such a way as to make it the last world war. All those writers and commentators stress the fact and the truth that wars terminate in peace pacts, but that if the peace terms are not equitable the new peace treaties are not peace treaties at all but the seed of new wars to come.

When we are personally and collectively attacked the first law of nature goes into operation immediately and every effort for defense is made. That is only natural. But man being superior to the animals, is endowed with the power to think, to look into the future and plan for a better world for tomorrow. This world must be based in equity and be conceived in equal rights and justice to every living being on this planet. We all come in naked and we all go to dust, so why, then, not leave a good record behind us for the few years we are permitted to live here?

The future demands courageous souls, clear minds and daring thinkers who will present such peace terms at the coming conference where all nations will be treated alike and have assurance of just treatment in the future so all of them may disarm and let reason rule in place of force.

Gospels Written In Aramaic, Not Greek, Says Savant

CHICAGO,—A university of Chicago professor reported the Gospels were not written originally in Greek, as assumed by New Testament scholars, but in Aramaic, the Near Eastern language spoken by Jesus himself.

Dr. Albert T. Olmstead, professor of Oriental history, proposed that scholars reconstruct the original words of Jesus by translating the Greek back into Aramaic. He said he believed a much clearer understanding of the exact content of Jesus' sayings would be obtained.

Dr. Olmstead said the sayings of Jesus contained actual puns which were lost in Greek versions. He cited Christ's condemnation of hypocrites who "strain at the gnat and swallow the camel". He explained the Aramaic word for gnat was "galma" and for camel "gamla".

POLIOMYELITIS

By DR. A. BUDDEN

In the Naturopath and Herald of Health (January, 1942—11)

This is a disease which of late years has been brought into the limelight. It is, perhaps, a sad commentary on our way of doing things that Mr. Roosevelt should have had to pay the price of paralysis in order to focus attention on so serious a problem.

However, we have it going now with a bang and the annual "March of Dimes" has become almost a national institution. We are a curious people, however, about such things. We are sold an idea and then begin excitedly to do something about it. That is, we start to raise money in large quantites, dump it into the lay of some organization and promptly forget it until next time.

It has been that way with the polio crusade. It will be recalled that the recovery which the President made was largely due to physical methods, to massage, and particularly to underwater exercise and manipulation.

The donors of dimes did they pay attention to such things would find, however, that by far the very largest portion of the money is not allocated for the building of institutions to help sufferers on the way to recovery but is handed over to research for the causes of polio, and, of course, such research is all along the line of hunting for a specific bug.

If this sounds queer, listen to the testimony of Dr. Joseph S. Wall, profesor of diseases of children of Georgetown University Medical School, before the subcommittee of Public Health, Hospitals and Charities at D. C. on January 1, 1938, that the money for the Foundation (Georgia Springs) derived from the Birthday balls would be devoted to animal research. "Not one penny of that fund will go to buying a crutch for a crippled child. The majority of the dollars in that fund will go to the purchase of monkeys," he said.

It is true that in very recent times and because of some public protest, the situation has been somewhat bettered, but there is still far too much emphasis on animal experimentation. That the donors of the dimes are to blame in a measure is partly true. They should insist that at least half of the money subscribed be set aside for treatment of the crippled children.

It may be asked what can be done along that line. The answer is a great deal. This has been demonstrated by non-medical physicians for years and without the aid of a "March of Dimes" or any other elaborate charity effort.

It is a pity that more cases are not treated early enough As it is now, it is generally with the effects of polio or infantile paralysis that the doctor has to deal. Because of the obscure symptoms, the acute stage is often passed over by parents as a severe confining cold, and it is the damage to the nervous system that is generally first noticed. How does the damage come about and what can be done about it?

Well, as everyone who has had dealings with polio knows, there is usually a paralysis with a wasting of muscle so that the patient cannot use an arm and drags a leg. Steel braces are often used to help overcome this handicap.

Now, in order to understand this degeneration, we should look at the make up of the spinal cord, for that is where it begins. Something happens to the great cells which lie in the most forward portion of this structure. There is a number of them opposite each segment of the spinal column and of course, there are a good many segments.

These cells are the mainsprings of the nerve pathways which run from the cord to the muscles of the body. These pathways carry impulses for movement and for nutrition to the muscles. Now, without the cells, the nerves are dead and with dead nerves the muscles cease to move and begin to shrink to about one third of the normal size.

That something does happen to these cells in polio is sure. They are attacked by what is called a "virus"— some authorities hold. This attack causes them to swell and become inflamed. If nothing is done about this,—and usually that is what happens—the cells in time fade out of the picture and the damage is complete.

It is at this point that we are asked to believe the strangest thing. It is that this virus is so choosey that, although there are many, many similar cells within easy reach, it will only attack the motor groups, the ones we have been describing, leaving the sensory and reflex aggregations strictly alone.

This, of course, is a miracle and because of it some have asked to be excused for hesitating to accept the virus theory—it's a theory you know—and begin looking for a more acceptable explanation. And, in passing, it may be said that such research will have to be carried on without benefit of public funds. For the present, the virus theory is holding the orthodox group in thrall.

But is may be asked, if the cells are destroyed and if then they do not grow again what chance is there for recovery? Well, in a young person, by great good luck, it seems that not all of these cells are developed at once. They appear to come to maturity from time to time, taking about fifteen years in all.

It happens, therefore, that there are still some of them which grow after the acute phases of the disease have subsided. These naturally escape destruction and so are ready to go to work when they are called upon.

That is they require an initial stimulus and this the non-medical physician supplies with his adjustment and his supporting procedures. Massage, either under water or of the usual kind, galvanism, to aid the injured muscles to pick up again, normalizing of the blood supply and proper diet are the tools he brings to bear. There is life and hope in such procedures, pity they and he are not encouraged and made more useful by at least part of the money which now goes to purchase expensive monkeys.

British Breach With Egyptian King Rumored

LONDON,— Intimations of a possible breach between the British government and King Farouk of Egypt, with the suggestion that his "loyalty to the alliance is by no means above suspicion"—appeared in the British press as a result of the resignation of Prime Minister Hussein Sirry Pasha's cabinet in Cairo.

The Daily Herald's diplomatic correspondent said:

"Ever since his accession King Farouk, who is only 22, has been arrogant and domineering in his dealings wtih successive ministries. He's shown no sense of the duties of a constitutional king.

'NOT ABOVE SUSPICION'

"Should things come to a real showdown between the king and the constitution, the attitude of the British government must necessarily be to support constitutionalism against any attempt at autocratic government—especially by a king whose loyalty to the alliance is by no means above suspicion."

NATURE'S BLOOD PURIFIER

If the right kinds of food are used and the other laws of health are observed the blood will always remain pure, but so many things are eaten that should never be put into the human body that most people feel they need a blood purifier. Here is one that does much good and no harm.

Use one bunch of carrots,

One half bunch of celery, leaves and all,

2 Medium sized onions,

2 Quarts of water,

Boil slowly for 20 minutes.

Add one pound tomatoes,

One bunch parsley,

Boil slowly 10 minutes more,

Strain and drink a quart a day.

The carrots, celery and onions should be grated as fine as possible before putting then into the water to boil. The above is enough for two persons for one day. A new supply should be made every morning and the treatment continued for a month if desired. This vegetable Juice is pleasant to take and cleanses the entire system

democracy

By Charles H. Ingersoll
(Of Dollar Watch Fame)

NEW YORK.—Glorification of Unionism 'as an Integral part of National defense and preservation of democracy' is a somewhat natural and common sentiment. These are the words of Philip Murray CIO president, succeeding John L. Lewis. Their truth, however, depends upon whether (1) Unionism is any solution of the 'labor problem'; and (2) whether it is not an integral part of Communism.. 100% production (employment of both labor and capital) is the only solution of the whole labor problem. Unionism creates an aristocratic monopoly of only a part of labor. Communism attacks business, capital, industry, wealth, and profits as the composite enemy of labor, ignoring basic monopoly and consumer taxes which rob both labor and capital of half their mutual production. Unionism follows this formula with precision as the direct and conscious agent of the Marxian ISMS, and also as the illiterate right arm of the monopolism which is unknown to Unionist and Communist leaders.

Ingersoll

Labor is at war with its partners in the production of everything humanity consumes; and out of this war grows the expanding world wars which regiment labor to its own destruction. This is the labor-problem, and that of democracy. But these partners—business, capital, wealth-controlling education, publicity and government—are they defending themselves? Are they enlightening labor as to their actual friends and real enemies? If they are not; if, in fact, the leaders of 'management' as collectivists call it, are as ignorant of economic relationships as labor leaders, how can they blame unionism and communism, or our President, and the New Deal administration, for fostering these destructive cults.

Labor-problem-solution is simple and as easy to accomplish as it is to see. Basic monopoly of natural resources, using a concededly devilish consumer tax system, robs both labor and employer, leaving them to war over the leavings. Can it be denied that the solution is to take from monopoly the tax club with which it perpetuates poverty, unemployment and labor war?

Our most serious war is here at home, between ourselvees, continuous and irrepressible. Labor, the ugly duckling of the New Deal, will no more yield to reason and organized society than the Devil's emissary, Hitler. True, the Old Deal did a better job of suppressing labor; also true that labor is more rebellious now. True it is now practically in revolt. Labor is now even breaking from its own Communist moorings, although its procedure in attacking capital, is 100% Communistic. Labor revolts against its own 'government' and tends strongly to 'wildcat' in its warfare. So what? A bill in Congress making defense striking treason? Is it now 100% treason? Fact is, multiplying laws will not solve the labor problem. It goes deeper than its own leaders or its employers or the government understands; exactly as the international world wars reach into fundamentals not recognized by any of the leaders—though many understand them. The question is shall we solve or palliate that first of all problems?

Letters to Gladys

LOST FAITH IN MEN

Dear Gladys:

You should not draw general conclusions from individual cases. Because one man disappointed you and did not keep faith with you as you expected him to do, is not proof that there are no men who live up to their obligations. Don't you realize that the very fact of your losing faith in all men because of the one man, shows up the weakness which attracted you to that man in the first place, to learn your lesson. You never get in life but what you put into it. While your father has spent oodles of money to give you a school education, your own flighty imagination painted a wrong picture of what you were looking for in a man as your life's companion and now you are left holding the sack. This is what actually happened:

When one is in love and the creative energies are set free to produce a home and a family, all the soul's devotion which one otherwise directs to the Creator is being transfered by the girl to her husband, he being the creator now in her life and upon his initiative and response depends her whole future. All the ideals of manhood and what a man should be, she seeks to have him fulfill for her. But it takes a perfect woman to play opposite a perfect man, and succeed. Naturally, you were bound to fail in some instances as he is bound to fall short, too. In your case you were the superior of the two and your interest in him was more maternal than wifely in the first instance, only you did not know it then. It turned out in the end that you rather took pity on him than really loved him with that devotion that would cause you to look up to him as your ideal of a man. So instead of being heart broken, rather be thankful and be richer by this experience. Instead of stewing and poring over men's infidelities, examine yourself and straighten out your own house that you may not fall prey again to some ignorant fancy and streak in you which finds response in another irresponsible man who loves a good time rather than the girl. THAT, in either sex, is the cause of heartbreaks. If you were aware of that tendency and guarded against it and examined yourself carefully to discover what feelings and responses the company of a man calls out in you, never again would you be caught in a trap.

There is a discipline which all of us should undergo since early childhood. Be sure and teach it to your girl as soon as she asks you about God, life and herself. Teach her to love the TRUTH. To take more pride and joy in being truthful than in anything else, as an achievement. That should be the first discipline. It takes much ingenuity today to be truthful and still get along in life among the treacherous creatures one meets right and left. That discipline will call out all her strenght of character as well as intelligence.

Teach her to realize the presence of God as a REALITY; to have a sense of PEACE and assurance whenever she thinks of God. That sense of safety because the Almighty REALLY loves her, will protect her at all times. It will cause her presence of mind to return when she becomes confused; it will give her the assurance of the superiority of goodness over cheapness and slipshodness; she will always select the better thing of two, when she has to take her choice. In these small matters of choice lies the secret of the building up of a successful life. And above all, teach her, when frightened and despondent to stop thinking and worrying and instead begin TO LOVE GOD. There is a time when the brain has reached its limits, the reasoning faculties are paralyzed by fatigue and are exhausted, man's extremity is God's opportunity; then GIVE UP and simply LOVE and TRUST in God. He is present; be a little child and give up struggling. Be aware of HIS omnipresence and let HIM show you how to act. He NEVER fails you.

And the next time I see you again, be sure to tell me that you don't judge all men by one man's failure. Sincerely KOSTI.

THEIR REASON

I stood on the plains of Belgium
While the German charge swept by;
And the light of a blazing city
Shone crimson against the sky.
The solid earth was shaken
By the rush of man and horse;
And strewn in the wake of battle
Lay many a mangled corpse.

I asked a dying Uhlan
The cause of the awful strife.
Why a thousand homes were blazing
And the land with slaughter was rife;
A light flashed in his closing eyes,
And the blood to his pale cheek rose,
And he feebly fondled his broken sword
And answered, "The Kaiser knows!"

I stood where the skies of Poland
Hung black with the War God's frown,
While the Austrians stormed through the trenches
And the Russian flags went down.
I saw. over hill and valley,
The waves of battle sweep,
Where God's fair image lay mangled
In many a bloody heap.

I asked a wounded Cossack,
Struck down in the battle's van,
Why man thus entered the shambles
To slaughter his fellow man?
His pallid face grew brilliant,
With a fierce and hectic glow,
As he answered, "The Great White Father
Hath spoken, and it is so!"

Woe to the wretched rulers,
Who thus for glory and gain.
Pollute God's fair creation
With the blood of millions slain;
Who seek, over piles of corpses,
To climb to a higher height,
While the smitten world beneath them
Is shadowed by death and blight.

Better a tent in the desert,
A den in the swamp's morass,
Where the song of a bird is never heard
And the feet of men ne'er pass—
Better to die in a hovel,
Neglected and alone,
Then to live in a reeking palace
And to press a blood-soaked throne.

What Is Life ?

We call this life, that is life's preparation.
We call this life, a little time of tears;
But think you God designed creation
For these few short years?

If this be all, then why these worlds around us?
Those countless stars and undiscovered skies?
I wonder, though in one small world we find us,
Why God made a trillion spheres?

A trillion spheres and ours a tiny planet,—
Eternity, and earth a little span—
I cannot think that God began it
For this
That God made man.

I eat, I drink, a little gold I win me,
One world enough for my necessities,
But something else, some other thing within me,
Does none of these.

My soul has little use for treasure,
Comes not to table, wears no silk or wool,
With all our playthings, finds its only pleasure—
The beautiful.

So many things my soul has naught to do with,
To which the man of flesh so fondly clings;
Shall that soul die when these things I am
Through with,—
These fleshly things?

God made man a habitation,—
The body soil in which the soul may grow—
This little life is but the preparation
The soul must know.

And then some day man's errors overcome him,
The body fails, the soul alone is mine;
And then God takes one small world from him—
Gives him the skies.

—Douglas Malloch.

ETERNAL MIND

Eternal mind in thee I dwell,
And tho I go through living hell,
What of it, 50 years from now,
Our hands by then have quit the plow !

Eternal mind inspire me,
That I may none but goodness see,
Creating values that will last
When this our planet will be past.

Eternal mind that culminates
In love which always recreates,
Improved refined and full of light
A place in which God to invite.

Eternal mind, Oh, free us all,
Lest hate-consumed we err and fall.
Give us eternal love and peace
This suffering mankind to release.
